

good deeds

Good news...both Brewster and Lizzie have found good homes with families that are committed to working things out. Here is Lizzie (on the right) with her new sister, Lola.

This is what her new dad had to say about Lizzie. "Lizzy is doing great. Her and Lola are good buddies now that Lizzy is the boss. They follow each other around the house it's like they are connected by the hip. Lizzy seems to have settled in really well. She is such a sweetheart, we are so glad to have her as part of our family. She goes outside to potty without any issues, if she needs to go out she'll let you know. We love her very much she is such a little lover. She likes to lay on the couch with me and give me lots of kisses. Lizzy really likes it when I'm working at night sometimes she'll sleep with my wife, Marcia and Lola in the bed but unlike Lola she likes to sleep under the covers on my side of the bed. She's a nut!. Without people like you and the Bulldog rescue we would have never found Lizzy. Thanks again for your time, and for letting Lizzy come home with us, Ben"

Brewster is also adjusting to sharing his home with another Bullie. They both think the couch belongs to them alone, so that is something his new family is still working on with Brewster. Brewster's sister is also a rescue Bullie with a similar story. It is great that his new mom and dad had room in their hearts and home for not just one rescue Bullie, but two!

New to rescue is Roxy.

Roxy is five ½ years old and generally very well behaved. She came into rescue because her owner got married and they recently had a baby. His new wife is not a dog person and was worried that Roxy could hurt the baby now that it is starting to crawl. Roxy likes kids, but she does have moments when she resists authority. We are working on that while she is in foster care and she has gotten much better. Roxy's former owner used to play "rough" active games with her like tug-o-war and she learned that by playing rough and tough and growling that sometimes she got her own way. Because Bulldogs are tenacious and "play to win", these kinds of games can sometimes cause problems if the owner is not careful to make sure that they are the boss of the situation. Roxy will need an owner who is not easily intimidated by her. She needs someone who will call her bluff and not let her run the show. Once Roxy learns she has to behave herself, she is a great girl. She has even learned to get along with another dog. Something her former owner said she was not good at. Just goes to show that maybe you can teach an "old dog" new tricks!

Roxy illustrates how easy it can be for a dog to acquire behavioral problems. Even though many behavioral issues are often created by improper training methods or lack of proper discipline, Roxy is also a good example of how well a dog can be rehabilitated if one is willing to work with them.

Love-a-Bull MN Bulldog Rescue has a new fundraiser. Not only will it raise money for rescue dogs, it will make your own dog happy too! For every $10 donated a person can pick out a crate pad of their choosing. There is no limit on how many crate pads a person can receive. The offer is good until supplies last. The approximate size of the crate pads is about 29 x 35. The crate pads have quilt batting inside for comfort and are machine washable. Marcia will be donating her time to sew up these lovely crate pads. They wash up nicely and hold up well. Be sure to check them out at the next Wrinkle Time!
