

Good Deeds

This is Cupid, Love-a-Bull's latest rescue Bullie:

Even though Cupid has a rather unusual name, it really seems to suit him. Cupid is a very loving and happy dog. Although Cupid doesn't use arrows, he does like to "hit home" his message of spreading the love. Cupid has an interesting method of showing affection when he is really happy. He likes to bang up against a person's knees to let you know he likes you, so you need to pay attention when Cupid is excited and wants some petting. When Cupid is excited to see someone he does a funny little shimmy when he walks. If you ask him if he is "doin' the hula", he wiggles his rear even more, so much that he practically vibrates. Cupid is pretty entertaining, but is not a hyper Bullie. He doesn't jump up on people and will sit when asked and once he settles down, he is quite gentleman. He is happy to sleep in his crate on his big pillow when he gets sleepy, but he sure can snore.

Cupid loves playing with his big Jolly Ball out in the yard, but once inside his favorite pastime seems to be sucking on his favorite stuffed toys. Surprisingly, he never seems to destroy them. Cupid often falls asleep with a stuffed toy in his mouth. Here's Cupid doing just that.

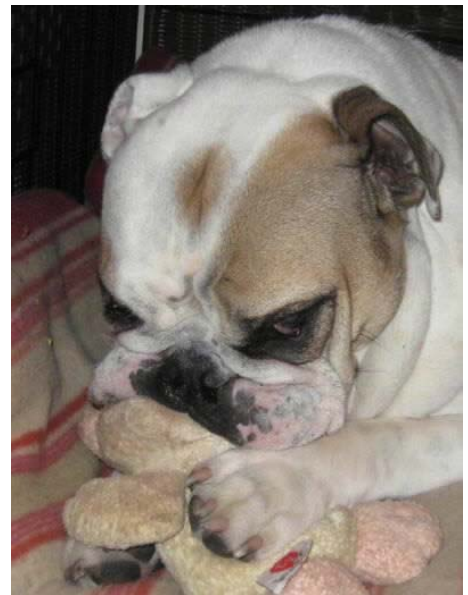

Cupid gets along great with other dogs. When he was at the vet clinic, he pushed open the exam room door and quickly gave a German Shepherd a kiss before he was pulled back into the room. I'm pretty sure what I saw on that dog's face was shocked surprise. I don't think he knew what "hit" him, but I think that was just Cupid slinging a little arrow of love his way.

Cupid is three years old and is a big boy at seventy pounds, but he is definitely all Bulldog. Cupid comes from North Dakota. Because there are no BCARN volunteers in North Dakota, his owner had to bring him to Minnesota to rehome him. Cupid's former owner is a recent widow who used to be home a lot with Cupid, but now works full-time and has other activities outside the home which she felt were keeping her from giving Cupid the attention she felt he deserved.

Before Cupid can go to his new home a lump on his shoulder has to be removed. He also tested positive for Lyme Disease, so he is on medication for three weeks to clear that up. Once he has healed from his surgery, he will be able to go to a new home. Love-a-Bull MN Bulldog Rescue is confident that we can find Cupid a great family. With a personality like his, Cupid should manage to get a few "love arrows" to hit the mark. Someone is sure to fall in love with him and he will soon be on his way to his "forever home". Cupid says, "Aint nobody stealing my stuffie!"
