Love-a-Bull Rescue has a new Bulldog needs a “forever home”. Killian is six years old and a big marshmallow of a dog. He needs to lose more than a few pounds, but is in pretty good health otherwise. His foster mom says that he likes to play with their Bullie and is pretty easy going. Killian could probably best be summed as your basic “couch potato” Bulldog. Once Killian gets in better physical condition he will probably have a little more energy for playtime. His skin also needs some TLC, and is currently on antibiotics for that and we hope that that will encourage his hair to grow in where it is now somewhat sparse.

Killian came into rescue because his owner was losing her home due to a divorce. Killian shared his home with small children and seems to be fine with other dogs, although he does like to be “boss” if he can get by with it. Killian will be available for adoption soon. If you are interested in adopting Killian or a Bulldog like him, check out the BCARN website at: www.rescuebulldogs.org

Love-a-Bull Rescue will be doing some fundraising at the Wrinkle Time “Picnic in the Park” in the form of a silent auction. We will have some great Bulldog items, so be sure to check it out and to bid generously if you are able. As a way of giving back to the Wrinkle Time attendees for their support of Bulldog Rescue, the Love-a-Bull Rescue group will be having a free “Check Your Chip” clinic.

Does your dog have a microchip and you’ve ever wondered if it is still “working” properly? At the May Wrinkle Time picnic we will be able to answer that question for you at no charge. Microchips are very reliable, but if you’ve ever wondered if the one in your dog is still showing up when scanned, we will be happy to give you the assurance that your dog’s unique number is showing up like it should. Reading the chip takes only seconds, so stop on by if you want to verify your dog’s microchip number.

For those of you who do not have your dog microchipped, but are interested in learning more, we can provide you more information about microchipping your dog as a means of permanent identification for the life of your dog. We will have a sample chip for you to examine and can provide you with more information about them. Your vet can easily microchip your dog at its next vet appointment. It takes but a moment to insert the chip and most dogs do not even notice when it is inserted. Once the unique number of the microchip is recorded at one of the national databases, you will have a way to get your dog back to you should it ever become separated from you. A microchip can provide great peace of mind for owners as it is proof of ownership that cannot be altered or lost such as tags on collars. Many lost dogs have been returned to owners because of this effective method of identification and a microchip is well worth the investment.
